He has been confined to bed for the last fortnight, with chronic diarrhoea, and is so weak from this cause, and the remains of his paralytic attack, that having occasion to leave his bed some days since, he was unable to return, but fell upon the floor and lay there until his daughter arrived some hours after to his assistance. The account which he gives of his poverty is truly heart-rending. During the eight days preceding last Saturday, he had not the slightest means of supporting life, and had it not been for the kindness of some poor neighbours he must have died of starvation. He informed the narrator of this case, that on one day the whole sustenance he could procure was a halfpenny worth of bread. The same individual, when calling on Saturday last, about one o'clock P.m., found that this man had not tasted bread that day, and the first supply expected was from the Destitute Sick Society, to whom application had been made. It may be mentioned that the visitor from the society called in the afternoon, and left 1. 6d., but assured the old man that no further supply could be granted. Case 2.--C. and his wife, both aged about 67, residing in Canongate, have lived about 40 years in Edinburgh. The man has had very little employment for the last two years, his branch of trade having been almost entirely superseded by a cheap improvement He left the infirmary in February last, where he had been confined two months by disease. Since that time to the present (15th October, 1840,) his whole earnings do not amount to 20. He has received 1. a-week from the parish, since November last, and with this sum he has to support himself, his wife, and a grown-up daughter, who was at one time a servant, but having had an attack of brain fever, has been somewhat sil...
